YOUR COMMENTS ON THE CASE

We wish to object to the Third Prison at Ulnes Walton. The expansion is within a greenbelt area and whatever direction potential visitors arrive from, that will be via small village locations with country B roads. The development will add to the already struggling road network, where drivers appear to think they are on at least a dual carriageway and unable to comprehend that there are parked cars etc, meaning they have to give way. Instead, they attempt to "squeeze" through leading to much road rage and far too many accidents. Road safety is an issue, drainage that is already damaged due to the amount of traffic bouncing over poorly maintained manholes within the roads is also an issue. However, surely common sense alone should prevail that such a development should be placed close to a motorway network, therefore protecting greenbelt areas, wildlife, the environment in particular our climate?!
